The Lion and the Little Rabbit

1

A big lion lived in the forest. Every day he hunted. He was very strong and all the animals were afraid.

One day the animals came to him.

“Please stop hunting,” they said. “Every day, one animal walks to your cave. You eat, and you don’t hunt. Is it a good deal?”

The lion was happy. “Yes! Now I don’t work. I only eat.”

2

Every day one animal walked to the cave. One day it was a little rabbit.

The rabbit walked very slowly. He thought and thought.

The lion was angry. “You are late! And you are very small!”

“I am sorry,” said the rabbit. “But there is another lion in this forest. He is going to come here now. He says, ‘This forest is my forest.’”

“WHAT?” The lion stood up. “Where is he? I am the king here!”

“Come with me,” said the rabbit.

3

The rabbit took the lion to an old well. He looked into the water for a long time.

“He is down there,” said the rabbit. “He is looking at you.”

The lion looked into the well. Another lion looked at him. The lion opened his mouth. The other lion opened his mouth, too.

“This is MY forest!” the lion shouted.

He jumped.

After that the animals walked in the forest and nobody was afraid. And every young rabbit stopped at that well. He looked down at the water for a long, long time before he drank.
