Word formation and reference words

Understand it

In completion tasks the missing word must fit the grammar of the sentence. Before you search, decide whether you need a noun, verb, adjective or adverb, singular or plural.

Reference words (this, it, they, the former) connect sentences. Understanding what they point back to is often the key to a Reading answer.

The rules

- Gap-fills need the right word class. Predict it first: after the, a noun or adjective; after to, a verb; after is, an adjective or -ing.
- Suffixes: nouns -tion, -ment, -ness, -ity, -er; verbs -ize, -en, -ify; adjectives -ful, -less, -ous, -able, -al; adverbs -ly.
- Reference words stand for something mentioned: this, that, these, those, it, they, which, the former, the latter, such.
- To understand a reference, look back to the nearest noun that fits in number and meaning.
