First Time at the Airport

Jamshid arrives at the airport for the first time. He is a little nervous and the building is huge. He sees a help desk and goes up to it. “Excuse me, could you tell me where gate 12 is?” he asks.

“It's on the left, near the café,” says the clerk. “Do you know what time the flight leaves?” “At six.” “And could you tell me if the airport has free Wi-Fi?” “Yes, it does. The password is on the wall.” Jamshid says thank you, and then he asks one more question: “Do you know how long the flight takes?” “About two hours,” says the clerk with a smile.

Jamshid feels better now. Polite questions work, he thinks. He goes to the gate, sits down and opens his book. Next time he will not be so nervous.
