What They Said

Yesterday Sarvar met his friend Dilshod near the bus stop. Dilshod looked happy. “I'm going to Samarkand tomorrow,” he said. “I'll visit my grandparents there.”

Sarvar listened and then said he couldn't go with him. “I have an exam,” he explained. Dilshod said he understood and told Sarvar to study hard. “I'll bring you some candy from the bazaar,” he promised.

In the evening Sarvar told his mother about the meeting. “Dilshod said he was going to Samarkand the next day,” he said. “He told me he would visit his grandparents, and he said he would bring me candy.” His mother smiled. “Then you'd better pass your exam!”
