A Power Cut

Last winter there was a power cut in our building. It was seven o'clock in the evening. I was doing my homework, my mother was cooking and my little brother was watching cartoons. Suddenly everything went dark.

“What was happening?” my brother asked. “Was it only our apartment?” We looked out of the window. The whole street was dark. Our neighbors were standing on their balconies and some people were using their phones as flashlights.

We found some candles and sat in the kitchen. Nobody was watching TV and nobody was using a computer, so we were talking and laughing for two hours. It was the best evening of the winter!

WORD HELP

candle — свеча

neighbor — сосед

Read it aloud two times. Then close the page and tell your partner three things you remember.
