Just in Time

Last month my cousin Timur was riding his bike home from school. It was raining and the road was slippery. He was listening to music, so he didn't hear the car behind him.

Suddenly, a child ran across the road. A driver was coming around the corner. Timur saw them both, braked hard and shouted. The driver stopped just in time. Timur's bike slipped and he fell, but he only scratched his hand.

A woman who was standing at the bus stop called the paramedics, and they checked Timur. Luckily he was fine. Since that day he always rides without headphones.

WORD HELP

scratch — поцарапать
brake — тормозить
luckily — к счастью

Read it aloud two times. Then close the page and tell your partner three things you remember.
