The Old Lamp

It was a dark night and a boy called Omar was walking through the forest. The wind was blowing and the trees were making strange noises. Omar wasn't afraid, because he was thinking about his grandfather's stories.

Suddenly he heard a sound. First he stopped, then he looked around. Behind a big tree he saw a small light. He walked slowly to the tree and found an old lamp. When he touched it, a friendly voice said, “Hello!”

Omar jumped back, but the voice laughed. “Don't worry,” it said. “I have been alone in this forest for a hundred years. Will you be my friend?” Omar smiled. In the end, they talked until the morning.
