A Tour of Your 12 Units

Day 1 · Reading (1 of 2)

What to do: Read it aloud, one paragraph each. Stop at every blue word: can anybody explain it?

Vocabulary topic: The big review: Units 1–12
20 new words (in blue) · EEW 1, Unit 1–12 · read a review of the whole course and show what you know easy parts harder parts (most new words are here)

Sixteen weeks ago you opened this course. You learned to say where you were, to tell what happened, to ask about the past, to describe a scene, to talk about your life and to plan the future. Now it is time to look back. This article is a little tour of the 12 units of your book. Read it and see how many words you know without help.

In Unit 1 we talked about fear. Everybody is afraid of something, and that is normal. In Unit 2 we went into a laboratory and did an experiment: some of the best discoveries came from a mistake. In Unit 3 we looked up at the sky and counted every planet.

Then came the animals. In Unit 4 a dog with a bell taught us about behavior, and we learned to stay calm when things get hard. In Unit 5 we met the rare animals of the wild. In Unit 6 we listened to the story of a friendly ghost and learned how a village survives bad weather. The main idea of these three units: nature is stronger than we are, but it can also be a friend.

In Unit 7 we looked at famous people and princes. In Unit 8 we tried to measure time with the Sun and the Moon. In Unit 9 and Unit 10 we went to the ocean and found an island. We also learned why a peacock is proud of its tail, and why a photo is not the whole life.

In the last two units we went camping and to the art gallery. To prepare for a trip, you must make a decision: where to go, what to take, whom to invite. A good artist also makes decisions every day. When you compare the quality of two pictures, or the quality of two plans, you learn that a small secret can make a big difference: a good habit repeated every day.

A Tour of Your 12 Units

Day 1 · Reading (2 of 2)

What to do: After reading: which paragraphs were easy, which were hard? Which blue words did you know already?

What did you do with the grammar? You started with was and were and ended with the future. You told about last weekend (past simple), about a Tuesday evening (past continuous), about your childhood (used to), about your life (present perfect) and about your plans (going to, will, might, if). Not every student does all of this in 16 weeks. You did.

Every new challenge needs a plan. If you want to discover something new, start with a question. Ask a neighbor, a teacher or a friend. Tell your story to somebody, and write it down. Now it is time to show what you have learned: a test, a written task and a talk. Do not be nervous. A test is not a judge of you; it is a mirror of the work you have done.

Before the test, do three simple things: sleep well, eat breakfast and read the questions slowly. If you do not know an answer, move on and come back later. A calm student writes better than a nervous one.

A test measures only a part of your English. It does not measure how brave you are in a real conversation, or how you understand a joke. So when you finish the test, go out and speak English with somebody: a tourist, a friend or a young cousin. Real practice is the best revision.

Good luck! And remember what the girl on the beach said: “I cannot save all of them, but I can save this one.” You cannot learn everything, but you can learn this: one word, one sentence, one story at a time.
