The rule: Present perfect: affirmative, questions and negatives

Form: have / has + the PAST PARTICIPLE. We've finished our homework. He's made a mess. (I've · you've · we've · they've · he's · she's)
Regular past participle = verb + -ed (printed, saved, tidied, turned off). Irregular: make → made · put → put · see → seen · do → done · go → been / gone. (list: Workbook p. 131)
Question: Have / Has + subject + participle? Have you seen my speakers? Yes, I have. / No, I haven't. Has she done her homework? Yes, she has.
Negative: haven't / hasn't + participle: She hasn't printed the document.
We use the present perfect for something that happened in the past, but it is still true NOW. I've tidied my room = my room is tidy now.

Watch out (we often say...)

~~I have tidied my room yesterday.~~	I tidied my room yesterday.
~~She has finish her homework.~~	She has finished her homework.
~~Have you saw my speakers?~~	Have you seen my speakers?
~~He haven't printed it.~~	He hasn't printed it.
